

The ethics of care

Professor Dan Geva, Department of Film, Faculty of Arts, Faculty of Society and Culture, Beit Berl College, Israel

Duration of video clip: 37 seconds

The last one is care. You know, receding the ego, favouring relationships, favouring altruism, favouring the good of the other in front of anything else, because what we are, we are here because we have been taken care of. We are here because we're caring creatures. So in Justine, was your action of care? My intuition tells me it was, I can see that, I can feel that, see what I'm saying? I could feel that you acted out of caring for caring, you care for care, I can see that.