MAKING

Intro to Ethics for Making website

Professor Pratap Rughani, University of the Arts London

Duration of video clip: 0 minutes and 33 seconds

The Ethics for Making website is something that's designed for makers and for audiences and so, it's based on a short film called Justine. It's a documentary that involves difficult decisions and from showing that work to audiences what's come back are people begging really difficult ethical questions. And as I listened to that I started to think this might be a really good way to ask myself and through that process to enable others to refine how we think about those ethical decisions.
